'Mr. Brown' lives in RP's most haunted house, Palace

By Juliet Lacey-Javidillo

HAUNTS AND REMAINS Figures sleep-piercing into walls. Phases playing by themselves in the dead of night.

Empty chairs turning, heavy curtains parting, plates vanishing from where you put them.

Don't forget the loopy (ghosts in Philippine folklore), regularly known to Palace staff as Mr. Brown, amid the branches of the centuries-old baobab tree.

By day, Malacañang stands as the mighty symbol of the nation.

But when night falls and its massive chandeliers are turned off, the 147-year-old seat of power with a turbulent history can tell its country's most haunted house.

Take it from various first families and their staffs, including battle-tested guards.

Or take it from President Aquino, who said "you never want to live in Malacañang proper" because of the

US terror plot thwarted

Chicago-bound bombs intercepted in 3 continents

WASHINGTON—Authorities on three continents thwarted multiple terrorist attacks aimed at the United States from Yemen on Friday, seizing two explosive packages addressed to Chicago-area synagogues and packed aboard cargo jets.

The plot triggered worldwide fears that al-Qaida was launching a major new terror campaign.

President Barack Obama called the coordinated attacks a "terrific terrorist threat," and US officials said they were increasingly confident that al-Qaida's Yemen branch, the group responsible for the failed Detroit airliner bombing last Christmas, was responsible.

Parts of the plot might remain undetected, Obama's counterterrorism chief warned. "The United States is not assuming that the attacks were disrupted and its remaining vigilance," John O. Brennan, the president's top counterterrorism adviser, said at the White House.

One of the packages was found aboard a cargo plane in Dubai, the other in England. Preliminary tests indicated the packages contained the powerful industrial explosive PETN, the same chemical used in the Christmas attack, US

HANOI, Vietnam—President Aquino returns home tonight after forging stronger ties with the Philippines' Southeast Asian neighbors and other countries at the 17th Asso-

But Mr. Aquino failed to hold bilateral talks with China, with whom the Philippines is seeking to mend ties following the islanded foreign crisis in August that left eight Hong Kong residents dead.

Fatima's third secret still secret

By Bernardo V. Lopez

Contributor

CONTROVERSY CONTINUES to surround the so-called Third Secret of Fatima, what it is and why the Catholic Church has been so tightly withholding most of it.

In a 2009 documentary on the famous Miracle of Our Lady of Fatima, the History Channel explained the message of war, peace and happiness in the letters of Sister Lucia containing the third of the three secrets revealed to her and her cousin by the Blessed Virgin Mary in 1917.

Three young Portuguese shepherdess—Lúcia Santos and her cousins, Francisco and Jacinta Maria—witnessed an miraculous apparition of the Blessed Virgin Mary between May and October of 1917 in Fatima, Portugal. This event is popularly known as Our Lady of Fatima, and is officially recognized by the Catholic Church as a miracle.

The secrets of Fatima were the Blessed Virgin's prophetic messages expressed in symbolic images. Science scholars have interpreted the first secret as predicting the catastrophic events of World Wars I and II.

Rough seas force 'balangay' off course

need a job?

By Naudi Pags

ROUGH SEAS have forced the Philippine crew sailing around South-east Asia on board replicas of pre-colonial "balangay" to change its homeward course.

In a sail to the location on Saturday morning, crew leader Jay Valdez said that rough seas and wind waves had prevented them from venturing to Tahan, Palawan, where they had intended to meet with President Aquino during the visit of the Governor of Southern Antique Province (Davao).

Wider said they had to ditch an earlier plan to sail southeast from Zamboanga to the South China Sea near Palawan.

Despite a foul weather, the crew decided to sail south (near the Gulf of Thailand) down to Malaysia where they were hoping to cross the sea-lane corner of the South China Sea to reach Palawan.

The Valdez said strong monsoon winds forced them to take refuge in Indonesian territory of the Tanimbar islands in between Singapore and Borneo.

"The waves were as tall as 15 to 20 feet. But by the grace of God we were able to find refuge and shelter," Valdez said.

Despite bad weather, crew leader Jay Valdez said that rough seas and wind waves had prevented them from venturing to Tahan, Palawan, where they had intended to meet with President Aquino during the visit of the Governor of Southern Antique Province (Davao).

The Valdez said strong monsoon winds forced them to take refuge in Indonesian territory of the Tanimbar islands in between Singapore and Borneo.

Valdez said that they would have wanted to reach Philippine territory by the 10 in time for the fight between Filipino boxing champion Manny Pacquiao and American boxer Timothy Lott.

"Let's see if that is possible. But we will be happy to make it at any time," he said.

The journey of the three balangays started in Manila on Sept. 1. Valdez said they undertook the journey to share Indonesia's rich history and to promote tourism in the Philippine maritime culture and industry.

Gov't sets aside P11-M for 'sacadas'

By Philip C. Tolentino

THE GOVERNMENT has set aside P30.7 million to help improve the socio-economic conditions of 50,000 disadvantaged migratory bird workers or "sacadas," labor inspectors Francisco Iñigo said yesterday.

In a statement, Iñigo said the money would be used for the Integrated Services for Migrant Sugar Workers (ISMSW) fund, which will provide social protection and welfare for sacadas.

It also intends to strengthen Sugar Industry Management Programs for child laborers to equip them with skills and knowledge aimed at eliminating the worst forms of child labor.

"I have directed the Bureau of Workers' Welfare (BWW) to coordinate with the Department of Labor (DOLE) to establish a profile and database of migrant sugar workers for social intervention and to be the best beneficiaries," Iñigo said.

Thompson and his colleagues found that the more people who were involved in the decision-making process, the more likely they were to accept the decision. This is because people who are involved in the decision-making process are more likely to understand the reasons behind the decision and to feel that their input was valued.

Abstract. The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of sedentary, middle-aged men. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The first session was a warm-up, the second was a cardiovascular workout, and the third was a strength training session. The results showed that the participants experienced significant improvements in their cardiovascular fitness, strength, and body composition. The study also found that the participants reported a decrease in their stress levels and an increase in their overall quality of life. The findings of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can be an effective way to improve the physical fitness and health of sedentary, middle-aged men.

Research Summary

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The control group consisted of 10 men who did not exercise regularly, and the training group consisted of 10 men who participated in a 10-week training program. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes, and included both aerobic and resistance training. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise at the beginning and end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training group had a significant increase in both HR and HRR compared to the control group. The HR at rest increased from 68 to 72 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 132 to 148 beats per minute. The HR at maximal exercise increased from 178 to 182 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 110 to 122 beats per minute. These findings suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary, middle-aged men.

Cabagnot strikes anew for San Mig

By Phang B. Cardillo

ALEX CABAGNOT is fast making a habit out of this.

San Miguel Beer's long-haired starting point guard knocked down the game-winning layup for the second straight game last night, clinching an 83-82 victory over Derby A in a PBA Philippine Cup game presented by Phoenix Fuel at the Araneta Coliseum.

Reversing the rebound with 34.7 seconds left, Cabagnot's layup played out the clock this year for a drive against Burger King before ending Alex Margueta's defense with a right-handed reverse with a touch of a second left.

It was a reverse played from three nights ago when Cabagnot shot the game-winning opposite ending there.

Conference champion Alaska.

"What can I say? I saw I was doublet (in the ending)," said San Miguel coach Alex Aguirre and reporters in Filipino at the Araneta Coliseum.

2-1 record. But, that Cabagnot drove was part of the play and Alex is a team player and he took the second option.

Aguiar, who remained undisturbed in three games at the helm of the league's most talented squad on paper, noted that the first option was for Cabagnot to dribble out the clock in paint and roll play and look to drop off a pass to a shooter.

But in the end, Aguiar was seeing what he did after the victory over Alaska "You did a good job."

Defending champion Derby A, which trailed in the series with a 1-2 lead, got up a huge fight, scoring fast from 14 points down in the second period to take lead, 58-53, after a tie score triple with 3:42 left in the third quarter.

And the Alabons never stopped fighting, more through they ended CABAGNOT 42.

CLAREN RANILLA, the long-time San Miguel Beer court general who turns 40 tomorrow, dribbles the way past Derby A's Jomar Villanueva in last night's game.

HSBC Philippines: 135 years and still running

By Daniel L. Lucas

IT CAN sometimes seem like it is the worst banking institution in the country.

On inspecting the premises of any of its branches, stress are placed by members' interests, a young and vibrant staff, and some of the most modern banking facilities including one of the most technologically advanced Internet banking services available today.

Yet, the local unit of British banking giant HSBC is also one of the oldest financial institutions in the country having opened its first branch in 1875, Calle Luna, Manila, in 1875.

This year, the bank recently listed as the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corp. (will its official name, but is known to as "HSBC") a few years ago for marketing purposes), celebrated its 135th anniversary of serving the Philippine market in a big way.

"We tried to say, HSBC only continues to go bigger and better," says recently appointed HSBC Philippines president and CEO Tony Cripps. "We are so committed to our customers that we are providing them with the very best personalized service and banking products that they've come to expect from the world's local bank."

Not long after landing on local shores, it must have been obvious from back in the late 1800s that this bank would go far.

Within eight years after opening its first branch in Manila, HSBC opened its second branch in Manila in 1883. A few years after, the bank became the country's first railroad in 1888 and later on, its extension in 1890.

Highlighting its status as a regional international institution, HSBC also served as the official depository of the Philippine government during their occupation from 1898 to 1918.

The bank stayed pretty much quiet and conservative in the corporate house for the rest of the century until 2005, when it acquired PGI Savings Bank and converted it to HSBC Savings Bank, which now has 36 branches in Metro Manila.

In 2006, HSBC opened its first branch in Manila in 1875 and inaugurated the HSBC Center at Fort Bonifacio a year after that.

HSBC's branch network has since expanded to include 24 branches covering Cebu, Panapa, Oahu and all key areas in Metro Manila.

A key partner of the government in raising and managing debt, HSBC has participated in many major transactions, including the more $1 billion global post-bank issue last month—the first local currency-denominated offshore issue by the Philippines and the first of its kind in Asia. It also acted as joint mandated lead arranger for San Miguel Corp.'s $1.4 billion 5-year debt issue last month. In July, the largest employer of loan facilities in the Philippines, that it is not only a bank that serves on the macro level, as it also operates quite successfully on the level of the individual client.

HSBC has, for example, offerings to address their total customer-specific needs. The bank's retail and private bank divisions have attracted and retained their customers, enabling them to get multi-variant and other great rewards when they get and use their credit cards.

At the same time, HSBC also recognizes the need to give back to the communities where it operates—a key component of its corporate sustainability strategy. Key programs include the HSBC Living Enterprise Awards, an annual business plan-writing competition held by HSBC for the past seven years aimed at uplifting the entrepreneurial spirit among college students. Project Kailash, a program launched in 2008 in partnership with WWF that involves Grade 7 public school students about climate change and environmental sustainability; and Future Plans, the HSBC Group's global Future program supporting smart children, children in care, and orphans.

HSBC also has been working closely with Manila's Macquarie Foundation, Inc. (MFI), a non-profit organization that provides financial education opportunities for community services in Metro Manila.

In celebration for 135th year in the Philippines, HSBC is giving the HSBC 135 Run on November 6 with all proceeds going to Handa De Manila's "Giving Me 500" program.

"The HSBC 135 Run aims to focus our commitment in the Philippines, and allows our friends and customers to celebrate our shared success, all for a good cause," says Cripps.

Indeed, it's been a busy 135 years for this bank that started as a small financial institution in Manila. Judging from their recent activities, it looks like it's going to be a busy 135 years ahead, too.

Global firm offers help on road mishaps

After the Land Transportation and Regulatory Board (LTRB) suspended the franchise of JAM Transit in the wake of another tragic bus accident in Batangas last week, the Department of Transportation and Communications (DOTC) expressed their alarm over the sharp increase of road accidents these past few months involving provincial and metro buses resulting to death of human lives.

Due to this latest development, a leading global corporate specializing in transportation and automotive maintenance daily offered solutions to government to curb this problem. NCC Corporation, a major international manufacturer and authority in the maintenance industry with subsidiaries in over 50 nations, applied its support to government's objectives to minimize accidents of public utility vehicles in the country. NCC Corp CEO for Asia Pacific David Poon recently visited the office of DOTC Undersecretary Wilson and proposed to conduct a free service and training on Cost Effective Vehicle Maintenance (CEVM) program to fix and prevent systems. Poon stated that the CEVM program would help reduce and enhance operators to be more conscious and responsible in maintaining their vehicle and prevent accidents involving the transportation industry.

Living a dream with Porsche

Once facing a blank future, the 10 new Megatronics are about to change their lives with their technical knowhow of the world's fastest car

By Mariel D. Salazar

"GDI" the worldwide the Philippine car designing and engineering, PGA-Care chair Robert Cortez tells the graduates.

NOT 20,000,000 can get a scholarship more than with K. And like a graduate more like a job, he is not just with a Porsche engine. The complexity of Porsche technology requires deep technical understanding only from trained individuals.

"Porsche as a sports car can do a lot of technical things on the road," said Robert Cortez, technical training manager of Porsche Training and Development Center Asia (PTCA). "We're everything about Porsche technology in speed and safety."

and the German Technical Institute (GTI) established Porsche Training and Development Center Asia where specially selected students were trained, and worked on a Porsche engine. Only the highly qualified, highly skilled, and well-trained individuals can understand Porsche engineering.

PTCA recently graduated its scholars and the fourth batch of the training was opened in 2008. Most of them will join the Porsche centers in working as dealers on Porsche centers in locations like Brunei, Dubai, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, and Yemen. For this batch, a couple of them are going to Porsche centers in Latin America.

Opportunities

Robert Cortez Jr., chair and chief executive officer of the Porsche Group of Companies where Porsche Philippines (established PGA-Care) is a part of, said to the scholars during the graduation that hold weekly at the PGA-Care offices in EDSA, Mandaluyong City. "Show the world that the Philippine car designing and engineering."

"Porsche is not just pleasure, but cars and working history," Cortez said. "It's also about combining on a new career and providing comprehensive training and employment opportunities."

He called the new PTCA Megatronics the "champion of our nation." PTCA is the only Porsche training center outside Germany which makes it really a privilege for anyone who is selected to join the German car-making company's center worldwide.

One of the graduates, who was hailed as the first Filipino in the batch, Norwin Gonzalez, 22, is looking forward to going to Argentina but not without the stars because he's leaving his 2-year old son and young wife behind. "This opportunity, I know in my heart, is the last foundation for my family's future," he said after the first. "I know it's going to be lonely there but not anymore give this chance, so I think you'll be a star."

Gonzalez and other graduates were also enrolled in language classes. For his part, he learned Spanish at Berlin, a language school in Berlin City.

Gonzalez was a Nursing student at Adamson University and his father's vegetable dealership business went bankrupt. At present, his father works as a police driver and his mother is a teacher in their home in Pasig City.

April's Lora Gonzalez's mother was extremely proud of her son. Gonzalez's father suffered from stroke four times that is why he had to stop from school. He was not the one to do it and just wait, he was on standing at his house and he had to wait, was included in the scholars. He lives in Makati City with his parents and brother.

Curriculum

Hugel and his two main objectives of the training center in five years is a growing need for qualified technicians in Porsche centers worldwide and they find Filipinos to be hardworking and easily adaptable to different situations. Second is to provide opportunities for the underprivileged people through a better future for themselves and their families.

PTCA was conceived in 2007 and started training in 2008.

The 12-month curriculum allows scholars to take basic training and skill-based courses (specifically automotive) as well as Porsche training. Hugel expects a job-oriented list and from there he will choose from among students who will work as a Porsche engine based on a satisfactory behavior, competence, technical understanding, language, and personality.

He knows the number of scholars from the need of the training centers worldwide. Since he arrived in 2008, Hugel has trained about 40 students.

Steps-Lopez of Porsche Latin America was also present during the graduation. This will be the first time that the region will require Filipinos to their service centers there. "It has been steps-Lopez who have the step from Porsche experience and knowledge is a very positive thing for us," Lopez said. "Unfortunately, include America if you're not yet had technicians with an entry level Porsche experience."

Lopez said Porsche has a 10 percent market share for VTEC and Business model and 10 percent for the Caparis.

Continuing the training

Hugel said what was the curriculum part is a 20 one-time fee-out. The training has a lasting effect on the students' lives because "but guarantee employment for them."

Also, Hugel said, the scholars were asked to produce training materials for the next batch of students to work on. "The level of technology in the world is also increasing."

TOP graduates Norwin Gonzalez with his son.

DRSG Lopez of Porsche Latin America flew after the graduation.

The scholars' skills are not limited to Porsche's highly technical and precision engineering. Germany being an industrial and country known as much as skills-based training and developing new technologies not only in car manufacturing. The experts and training with Porsche experience, opportunities, and a whole new different world for them.

The ones underprivileged people are more privileged in the car with a Porsche.

Honda provides eco-safe driving training for government fleet

RENDERING TO environment forum held recently by Honda Cars Philippines Inc. (HCP), the Honda group of companies consisting of HCP, Honda Philippines Inc. (HPI), Honda Power Manufacturing Corporation (HPMC), and Honda Trading Philippines (HTP), through the Honda Foundation, signed a memorandum of agreement to share with government that Honda's technical expertise and facilities in teaching fuel efficiency and safe driving behavior. The program promotes driving habits as one of the key factors in conserving fuel and minimizing greenhouse gas emissions, while maintaining safety for road users. This project is an extension of HCP's fuel efficiency driving competition program called the Honda Challenge Cup. The Honda Challenge Cup, established year back in 1996, promotes enhancement of the country's safety record, day-to-day driving habits.

Honda formed the Blue Skies Alliance by partnering with local agencies and government agencies to contribute to an environment forum that dealt with various approaches in attaining sustainable mobility. The forum aimed to provide awareness to the country's environmental issues as well as the government and on-line non-government organizations efforts in programs to encourage wider participation from both private and public sectors.

In celebration of HCP's 20 years of operations, Honda strengthened its English communication platform to ensure that the car's safety, as well as the Honda's commitment to the environment is not only evident on its high quality and convenient lifestyle products but also on its operations. Honda has invested in multi-million peso facilities such as wastewater treatment and Universal Containers to recycle waste water and treat hazardous waste before discharge. # Changing flat tires: the dangers and risks

TO MOST changing a flat tire is seen as more of an inconvenience than anything else. After all, it's a rather simple process that, at best, makes the driver late and perhaps a little angry.

But beyond the perceived "bored," there are the dangers that are often overlooked. In some injury and, yes, even death, are the real risks that come in changing a flat tire where you are road.

Car collisions

There are many cases where the person changing the tire has been hit or run over by other speeding cars. This kind of accident is common among those who stop on the highway and the vehicle is not parked in the shoulder lane to safely change the tire.

What happens is that the person changing the tire cannot search out for approaching traffic. In some cases, the person may be under the car and his feet will be exposed on the side where there are incoming cars. In instance like these, it is best to have a companion who can also direct the traffic, having an early warning device is also an option. In any kind of situation, especially if the driver is by himself.

Getting pinned

Yes, this happens not only in motorist but in rail, like as well. In some cases, a car may not be pushed up properly and it can literally fall on top of the person working on the car should be here to get under the vehicle.

If a driver is not changing his tire on a shoulder lane, there is a risk of getting run over by his own car. Therefore, it is ideal that changing tires be done on a level surface. This kind of accident can also occur if the car is not set in "park" and the handbrake are locked in. In other changing tires and there are no chocks or wedges to keep the vehicle from rolling over the driver.

If a flat or a blowout should happen, the driver should make sure to avoid ending up in the above-mentioned situations by being prepared with the right equipment and a good practice of mind.

Of course, in dangerous situations like these, "preventive" is always better than the cure. Type Guardian, the indispensable commercial liquid gel that offers proactive protection for all types of tires against punctures, embeds this popular saying. Made in Australia and exclusively distributed in the Philippines by Autolife Inc, Type Guardian is designed to protect tires from flat caused by objects that are up to three inches (two and four inches) deep) in diameter throughout its lifespan.

Type Guardian will not affect wheel balance in all and not cause wiggling. Instead, proactive protection, this high-strength gel even prolongs the life of tires and also helps maintain adhesion of retread tires for commercial applications. Type Guardian even reduces tire heat, prevents rust, helps control water collection (the number one cause of failure) and improves fuel consumption by up to 10 percent.

Once spread completely inside the tire and sealed by driving the auto, Type Guardian seals all porous holes (which is a naturally porous material), sequesters road debris. The coating also provides a barrier which maintains the pressure and creates a complete air-tight environment. This creates extra pressure for the full life cycle of the tire.

In the event of a puncture, the pressurized air helps trying to escape will immediately draw Type Guardian to the source of the leak and seal the hole. Regardless if the puncturing object is removed or not, the gel will seal all porous holes and holes. The sealing function is permanent, however the tire doesn't need to be removed and repaired. This allows the driver to stay in the car and avoid dangerous situations should be here to change the tire.

AMBASSADOR/Honorable Kato (right) with Toyota Motor Philippines Corporation (TMPP) president Melchior Segura.

Japanese envoy visits Toyota's facility

THE EXCELLENCE Japan Ambassador Hiroko Kato's (right) visit to the production facility of land auto manufacturer Toyota Motor Philippines Corporation (TMPP) in Santa Rosa City, Laguna. Ambassador Kato was previously hosted by TMPP president Melchior Segura (left) who toured him around the plant that produces the best-selling four-door compact sedan and the known multi-purpose utility vehicle for the local market. During the tour, Ambassador Kato witnessed how built-in quality was installed in every car by highly-competent and skilled Filipino workers. Toyota Motor Corporation, Japan, was affirmed this level of quality excellence by recognizing TMPP as one of the top five "best performing Toyota" overseas. Aside from quality, TMPP's environment-friendly practices were also presented, highlighting the company's adherence to environmental protection and safety consciousness in the workplace.

Global firm offers...

Knowledge 80-1

Wrote added that this would likewise serve as company expansion through effective periodic preventive maintenance and would ensure that these transportation modes are properly maintained. "Public transportation is considered a vital lifeline for progress. Having an efficient transport system backed up by a diligent periodic maintenance of their units and proper driver education on road safety would spell the difference in a thriving economy of a nation," Nino explained.

Also, Nino welcomed this development and was optimistic that such a program would greatly help the Japanese tourist and attract PLS operators on the wings of all maintained vehicles. "This program of giving first maintenance on the importance of timely periodic maintenance of vital mechanical parts of PLS will definitely reduce road accidents around the country," Nino added.

Recently, DOTC Inc. Jose da Jesus ordered the review by the Land Transportation Office (LTO) and the LTO in all corners of public utility vehicles (PUV) on road safety following the queue of fatal PUV accidents.

According to the DOTC data on the top ten causes of death in the country, road accidents were ranked fourth behind natural diseases like malaria, heart and cancer respectively.

Nino observed that the transportation sector is just of the popular economies in Southeast Asia and in China, Korea and Japan are successful due to the harmonious partnership between the public and private sectors in finding ways for an efficient and effective transportation system. He said that knowledge in their areas of development is key to a sustained and ever-growing efficient time management. "Compounded variables such as vehicle accidents, breakdowns of vehicles and disregard of basic traffic rules and regulations ultimately result in unfortunate traffic situations and a waste of valuable productive time of our motorists," Nino added.

Halloween—the only time of year when I look normally dressed

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! This is the only day of the year when I look normally depressed, since everyone around me is also in costume.

People ask how I choose my Halloween costumes. Knowing I have a mouthful of wriggle and seven inches, I have to dress up as a Hollywood villain. This year, I am sure my super costume will be hot, thanks to Twilight's Alice.

Marble-ale makeup involves using a pale and unadorned press powder to achieve that all-over skin. Matched with a deep, blood-red lipstick, the look just needs fangs to pull it off.

Through Polaris, I discovered G4G's (www.dinnerparty.com), a fun shop-selling costumes, props and quirky party pieces. They are so fun and they offer just what you need for your party. I have been to the official Harry Potter party, so I know.

Gender swinging

'Maybe I enjoy guys now because I have a boyfriend. But it could be that I just haven't met a girl I can truly like...You never know'

By Gilda Cortez-Fernandez

Girls who are boys:
 Who do boys like they're girls?
 Who do girls like they're boys?
 —From the pop song "GIRLs and BOYS"

MY YOUNG interviewee doesn't blush. She says, "I need to meet for some small business, shared for good with Lila, a meeting with whom she had a relationship going. One day I saw Lila's desk and laptop bag and I thought she was the director. They had apparently called in open."

I didn't see Lila for a while until one day she appeared on my doorstep. She announced brightly that she was leaving her husband. She would be coming back to Manila. "My boyfriend's getting a fellowship which includes a fiancé," she said. "I will stay with him." I did a double take.

"Your boyfriend?" I asked intentionally. "What happened to the girl?" "Oh," she answered shyly. "She's just gone."

A week later, another young friend, Sharon, dropped by with her 21-year-old friend, Jan. "This means, let's get this clear: Sharon has Jan, girl + boy?" "Well, girl + girl, yes. I have no history but I'm open."

Alright! What did that mean? I was getting really confused. Sharon persisted in coming up a few blocks and taking them to my house to enlighten me. I do not know if Sharon's friends are typical of the whole spectrum. They are usually still good with the old.

Things I would never have known if I just stuck to other old friends like me unfolded through the song, and the children, and the adult, and the dancer. I am sharing the following interview with my readers on this condition: Sharon do not share the meanings. And please do not have a heart attack.

May I choose?

"When I was about four years old some older children asked me if I was a boy or a girl. I couldn't answer because I really didn't know. They told me to be one and wouldn't let me go. I just cried and cried. My parents scared me to a girl but I grew up self, lonely, very unhappy and I was always into sports. You can be born with a female organ but you feel you're not. I think at a certain age one must be able to choose."

"Gender is not a given. We just cling too much to the idea that it defines one's sexuality. It's just a body part."

"Actually everything is a possibility. When I was asked what sex was, I said only women. The female body is the future. I'll still have to see. Maybe I enjoy guys now because I have a boyfriend. But it could be that I just haven't met a girl I can truly like. If I do, I'll be a girl. I can only like. If I do, I'll be a girl."

Mother Ricky: 25 years of beauty in the city

RICKY REYES has brought beauty to many Filipinas at very affordable prices. Mother Ricky, as he is fondly called, has been known to push the envelope in the beauty biz with campaigns like Drain Doctors, which gave Filipinas the confidence to color their hair in the sun-brown pink colors of the early '80s. In the more recent Goodbye Little Bit with screen legend Shirley Lim, where he showed us that beauty is learned lessons.

It was this same advertisement that led to his role in Henry 8th released in the same year of his career launch at SM City North EDSA when it opened in November 1985. He has since grown with SM, bringing beauty to each corner around the Philippines with his shops in the malls. And steadily showing his craft with the two tutorials through his beauteous programs.

As SM City North EDSA celebrates its 25th anniversary in November, Ricky recalls that moment in time that made all the difference in his career, and his special relationship with the store he calls "Henry."

About the time SM City North EDSA opened, the Philippines was the center of a major political and economic crisis brought about by the death of Imelda Marcos. What made you decide to go against the tide and open a salon there?

The business climate was gloomy during that time, but as a businessman, I'm committed to a mission. I'm very positive in my outlook, and I've always believed that after every bad event, a good event will come.

Remember that very first customer at that time called to join SM, not only because of the difficult times, but because they felt the store was uniquely because of the fact that previously occupied a disreputable place. A lot of people ask me why I chose to open there, and I said that I was really disappointed when I saw it to think that it would be a place where I would be working. I was not working for me at that time. I like it because that SM City North EDSA was the first store in the country.

How was your opening day experience?

I was very happy to be a pioneer store. Since we were very first, there were a lot of attention. The SM Management gave to me Henry 8th, where I call "Henry," would frequently pass by my salon and make some very close.

I remember having a difficult time of Henry during opening day because my salon was under the roof, and when they opened the air was filled with me. I was a good laugh, and have been close since that time. My biggest love with Henry was that I was the first to put me on the site because of the nature of my business.

How has it been like working with SM?

Henry has been very much like a father and brother to me. I remember during the early days, he would go to my salon every time for me at SM North EDSA, and we would have coffee together. I've learned a lot from him.

There were many times when he would visit me and ask, "How is your business? Are you making money? Do you need money? Do you need help?" I need help by his concern, but I would justly decline because we would never talk about money. I had a lot of respect for him, and I guess he respected me. So, because of that, I know my parameters. And I never complained, because I understood that he was always busy.

How has your company grown since that time? How did SM contribute to that growth?

THIS IS OUR City

Ricky Reyes

BEAUTY CLUB

As a beauty expert, Ricky Reyes has never been afraid to experiment on new ways and means to make hair beautiful and more look great and feel good about themselves. It was this same sense of adventure that propelled him to join SM, Henry 8th, in his first mall venture, SM City North EDSA in 1985.

As one of SM City North EDSA's pioneer tenants, he was appointed as the pioneering partner and occasional critic of the place. But he did not know that he had more weight to him, like SM, an important part of the mall industry in the Philippines. His business has grown with SM, and as SM City North EDSA celebrates its 25th Anniversary, he looks forward to bringing beauty to more Filipinas as SM expands its mall network to more cities around the Philippines.

A PARADISE of the Great Temple of Erdene Zuu

Is there Mongolian Barbecue in Mongolia?

Text and photos by Lou Masala

THE MENTION of Mongolia evokes, for me, images of a thousand horses thundering across vast plains. What a disappointment, then, to arrive in the nation's capital, Ulaan Bator, and not its trademark steppes of dust and conifers.

Since the Soviets had once been so influential in Mongolia, people observe that Ulaan Bator has as many of the smaller architectural features of Moscow.

It is when you drive out of the metropolis that the country is as you would expect it to be. The plains are astounding, indeed, dry, empty, even ending. It is easy to forget that nature exists and that the nation's nature is covered mostly by water. In Mongolia, there is only land.

Clearly I shouldn't judge Mongolia based on my views of its capital. After all, this was a nation whose leaders had indicated upon their arrival all the way from Asia to the very gates of Europe.

I had to ask one driver to stop so that I could enter the river. Being from an underdog nation, I was told it was difficult to convey this to someone in Asia. Everywhere one turned was a machine, empty white, and I had missed the night before and the glowing white landscape that now stretched before me could not be more alien to my expected perceptions.

Disconcerting emptiness

I suppose it was the emptiness that was so novel, so disconcerting. The Mongolia is a largely unadorned place. With a population of just three million, but occupying nearly two-thirds of the entire Asian continent, there are whole areas where one could not even see another soul for miles around. For that reason, one would not find much to be seen, but just a huge flat.

So that is the land, in fact, that most of the world's population does not know of. It is the only place where one can see the world's largest herd of horses, but not the world's largest herd of horses.

Suddenly, I found that our vehicle had simply stopped on the open plain for what seemed the hours we drove, surrounded only by the horses, but distant, unaccompanied by a trace of wilderness with the wind. Other cars passed us by, none.

Finally we reached our destination: the Ordos Valley, one of the most beautiful of the world's. It was a beautiful valley, one of the most beautiful of the world's. It was a beautiful valley, one of the most beautiful of the world's.

After breakfast, I was asked by my kind host what I would like to eat for lunch. I happily suggested "Mongolian barbecue." Such is the Philippines, at all, this means a delicious dish of meat fried with the same ingredients as our own.

My hosts were puzzled. They had never heard of such a thing. But, around that table, a lively conversation could hear their names, they gently agreed to give it their best shot. I would be served increasingly creative versions of Mongolian barbecue every day for the rest of my stay.

Great temple

Finally I got to see the main objective of our trip: the great temple of Erdene Zuu. It was here that I had to confess a secret.

How to get there

▲ From Ulaan Bator, it is a 100-mile drive to the Ordos Valley. It is a 100-mile drive to the Ordos Valley. It is a 100-mile drive to the Ordos Valley.

▲ A great place to stay in the Ordos Valley is the Ordos Valley Hotel. It is a great place to stay in the Ordos Valley. It is a great place to stay in the Ordos Valley.

▲ The Ordos Valley Hotel is a great place to stay in the Ordos Valley. It is a great place to stay in the Ordos Valley. It is a great place to stay in the Ordos Valley.

ENTERING Erdene Zuu

Ordos Valley is a beautiful valley, one of the most beautiful of the world's. It is a beautiful valley, one of the most beautiful of the world's. It is a beautiful valley, one of the most beautiful of the world's.

But I also saw the magnificent temple that indicated how in many of the buildings within the complex had been destroyed. Sadly, during the height of the Soviet's influence, there was a campaign against organized religion. Temples and monasteries were targeted for destruction. Many buildings before ruins that our hosts are so much marked by obvious religious positions.

One couldn't help but marvel at the ruins of temples that mark the presence of Erdene Zuu. They proved they look, glowing white against the impossible blue sky. One little white pavilion during the height of the Soviet's influence and during that time, one had witnessed.

The Ordos Valley is a beautiful valley, one of the most beautiful of the world's. It is a beautiful valley, one of the most beautiful of the world's. It is a beautiful valley, one of the most beautiful of the world's.

During the morning, one got a sense of the many challenges that our hosts were facing. Together, they were facing the challenges of the world's. They were facing the challenges of the world's.

One also gets a sense of the

THE PEOPLE'S Great Food

No—but traces of a once-mighty global empire are still around

BY and a bowl of milk

just how an ancient monument is really a testimony to the civilization that produced it. A sense of earth had to be dug up and transformed into bricks, which bricks had to be fired for the hours and centuries. (What, it is no longer possible to move across an ancient building, simply because it is so difficult to find even the strongest building project in the world of the original.)

The walls of Erdene Zuu are covered with illustrations of the complex beliefs of the Mongolian people. This image I found quite compelling was a picture of a sky boat, with the vessels and limits of the deceased being sent for rebirth in heaven.

High point

The high point of my visit was visiting the Great Temple. It allowed me to see with my own eyes the great temple of the Mongolian people. It allowed me to see with my own eyes the great temple of the Mongolian people. It allowed me to see with my own eyes the great temple of the Mongolian people.

The Great Temple was a great temple of the Mongolian people. It was a great temple of the Mongolian people. It was a great temple of the Mongolian people.

ple's venerable deity, would be that I had in my presence.

Fortunately, my hosts were enthusiastically prepared. When it was time for tea, they did not forget to bring a gift wrapped in a hard plastic. I opened it much later. I saw it was the Great Temple of the Mongolian people.

During our trip back to the city, I found about some things on a hill in the distance. Seeing my hosts, they drove again and again to the hill, and they were the Great Temple of the Mongolian people.

Standing there, in what was in effect the heart of the land, I emerged the Great Temple of the Mongolian people. It was a Great Temple of the Mongolian people. It was a Great Temple of the Mongolian people.

I remembered how they had been there, and, suddenly there would be more temples and more old buildings. Suddenly, there might even be a temple. I was quite sure that I had seen the Great Temple of the Mongolian people.

Fil-Am war film's US premiere set in Hollywood Nov. 6

JOJO, Tere and Bodin-Perez as play characters in "Angels."

LOS ANGELES — "Angels," writer-director John Ayler's latest drama set in the Philippines-American War and shot in Iloilo, screens for the first time in the United States at the AFI (American Film Institute) Fest on Nov. 6, 9-10 p.m. at the world-famous Grauman's Chinese Theatre in Hollywood.

The film focuses on a local village during the US invasion in 1945 while still receiving from the revolutionaries.

The screening is presented by the Association for the Advancement of Philippine-American Arts and Culture (AAPAC) located in Manila 4013, according to its founding board director and chair, Marissa.

When asked about the very first screening of "Angels" in the United States, specifically AAPAC, she said: "It's a very special occasion as well as a big John Ayler day." Maggie Bess, "Angels" producer, told us the crew, "AFI looked us up with AFI and Western Union, who contacted for Ayler is getting a great response."

Unique part of history

Starting with them, the film was shot entirely in the Philippines during a part of US-American history to support its globally a scene.

STARS of the 2009 movie "Immortal" said because Entertainment that shows how "Twilight" clone.

"Some would say that we're inspired by 'Twilight,' but we tried to make our show as original as possible. Our approach is very different, and we put a lot of effort in the script."

The critics, John Lloyd Cruz, who plays a vampire, agreed. "Comparisons with 'Twilight' cannot be avoided, considering how popular the novel-turned-series are globally. But our approach and execution are different."

Comments of the stars are all the right words given the popularity of "True Blood" and "The Vampire Diaries" on TV.

But what makes "Immortal" so special? "The way we portrayed the characters. The best is that, unlike vampire stories are more complex, but ours is more human," said John Lloyd.

Kapamilya stars...

Angel pointed out: "I don't think 'Twilight' holds the copyright on all vampire and werewolf stories. But I'm proud to say I've created a story for the local work scene."

John Lloyd related that he printed himself for the challenge of playing Marlon, a blood sucker, by reading stories about vampires on the Net. "It was the first time to play a supernatural character. In previous roles, my roles were always realistic. This was a challenge. I'm not used to the horror genre."

Headshots

Angel, for his part, had a hard time. Because this was the last one of "Tatlo," the principal of "Angel" was present.

"I felt like I was with my 'Tatlo' character. I'm a success! This time, I'm playing like [his] daughter. 'Tatlo' is also special to me because I was named after the late national basketball player. It was a hard time for that scene."

"They look like a husband and wife. As director Chito Rocha, who took charge of the show's launch."

"It was my first time to be handled by Chito Rocha," John Lloyd said. "It's easy to work with him. He's very detailed, but it's all worth it when you see the results."

"It's a dream come true for me," he continued. "I used to get nervous, but because he's more for me, I found it easier. And I learned a lot from Chito Rocha. Now I know why he's well-respected in this industry."

Marital bliss

Angel and John Lloyd also got along famously.

"Our difference from my other leading ladies," John Lloyd said of Angel. "The things she does are stuff that boys enjoy, but, hey, guys, she's one of the boys."

"She's quiet at first, but she's also very deep," Angel said of John Lloyd. "At the end, we get to talk about different topics like love, sex, and life. It's very interesting."

Onscreen

Do they chat about their roles? "I have the right to give her advice about acting, because I also have my own experiences on screen," Angel said.
